MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does prevent derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

143 Market Street,
Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901.
In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 31, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again. MRS. J. W. C. SMITH.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

REAL ECONOMY.

Be Careful About Necessities, but Luxurious With Luxuries.

"What is the nature of the personal economy of a successful business man?" writes Hutchins Hapgood in Ainslee's. "What is a rich man's attitude toward expenditure? He always wants his money's worth in necessaries, and in them will often drive a hard bargain. That is part of his business. It fits into his scheme to be consistent in the field of his work. He is too much of an artist not to round out the whole system of getting the most for his outlay. But for luxuries he will spend enormously, with no eye to economy.

"It is a luxury to him to spend large sums for his wife's dresses, for jewels for her ears, for opera seats, for his extravagant son's amusement. For his own few personal luxuries—for his cigars, for his wine—he will pay the highest prices. As the wise Bacon said, 'A man ought warily to begin charges which, begun, must continue, but in matters that return not he may be more liberal.' In other words, be careful about necessaries, but when it comes to luxuries be really luxurious. This is the natural instinct of a man really sound in business matters. Such a man is economically constructive and devoted to big plans, and he has no leisure or nerves left for small sacrifices. A condition of his continued productiveness is that he should satisfy his temperament, should buy his wife all the jewels she wants and allow his son to 'splurge' with the best.

"Genius has its vagaries, which must be satisfied unless the productive spirit is to fall away. A live business man contributes enormously more to the common good than if he didn't spend enough to stimulate his business genius. Spendthrift wives are often a spur to their husbands. The watchword in general is—the economy of extravagance."

Neatly Rebuked.

Dr. Thomas Hume, an Irish wit and friend of Thomas Moore, went into a newspaper office and silently placed on the counter the announcement of a friend's death, together with 5 shillings, the usual charge for the insertion of such advertisements.

The clerk looked at the paper, tossed it to one side and said in a surly manner:

"Seven and six."

"I have frequently had occasion," replied Hume, "to publish these simple notices, and I have never before been charged more than 5 shillings."

"Simple!" repeated the clerk grumpily, without looking up. "You say he is 'universally beloved and deeply regretted!' Seven and six!"

Hume laid the additional money on the counter, saying quietly:

"Congratulate yourself, sir, that this is an extra expense to which your executors will never be put."

Natural Fountain Pen.

Pine needles grow in pairs in the same sheath, and when placed side by side the sharp pointed ends are exactly opposite. Fasten these two needles together by a thread quite near the pointed end, and you will have a pen with two sharp nibs, ready to write whatever you please. As penholder insert the pen into a hollow twig, letting the points stick out about half an inch. Dip your pen into an inkstand, letting it remain for a short time in the ink. The ink will rise by capillarity in the tube formed by the junction of the two needles and will form a reserve of liquid sufficient for the writing of twenty lines. The pen is fine, simple and won't rust.

Tobacco and Progress.

Modern civilization would not be what it is if it were not for tobacco, is the opinion of an English scientist. Modern civilization, he maintains, did not begin until tobacco was introduced into the old world, and he infers that it would not have begun then if tobacco had not been introduced.

"The golden age of England," he says, "was the era of tobacco, the giants of literature and politics were inspired by the smoke of tobacco, and one may truthfully say that the empire of Great Britain was founded in the midst of smoke."—New York Herald.

Connecticut.

Connecticut has three sobriquets. It has been called the "Land of Steady Habits," from the sobriety and gravity of its people; the Freestone State, from its enormous quarries of that description of stone, and the Nutmeg State, from the tradition prevalent in surrounding communities over a hundred years ago that the chief industry of its inhabitants was the manufacture of nutmegs of wood, to be passed off as genuine on unsuspecting purchasers.

PENRHYN ISLAND.

One of the Pearl Studded Fairy Rings of the Pacific.

Penrhyn appeared one morning on the northern horizon, a band of dim shadow above the ocean. On these narrow islands you see the dark line of the palm tree fronds at a distance, but not the stems, so that the land seems to hang between sea and sky. Penrhyn is one of those fascinating atolls, the fairy rings of the Pacific, that have been formed by the subsidence of the land, while only the coral reef that once encircled it remains, and the great circular lagoon takes the place of the island that was. The islands are not more than ten feet high.

The famous pearl island was supposed to have been discovered by the ship Lady Penrhyn in 1788. Lieutenant Rignold of the Porpoise, who visited it in 1841, stated that its inhabitants were the wildest and most savage looking beings he had ever seen. The island was subsequently visited by traders and in 1888 was formally annexed to Great Britain.

Penrhyn is one of the most famous pearl islands of the Pacific, and its divers are as famous as its pearls. They will dive to a depth of twenty fathoms, or 120 feet. The pearl shell grows to a very large size in the lagoon, and the picked shell is worth $1,000 a ton in the home market. Formerly pearls were more plentiful. On one occasion Messrs. Godeffroy, the famous German firm, shipped to Europe in one parcel pearls to the value of $20,000, the product of a few months' collection among the islands, and in the early days the beach combers who were daring enough to land on those remote islands and who managed to escape the ovens of the cannibals often realized great sums of money by the sale of parcels of these gems.—Pearson's Magazine.

Surgery In Kentucky, Sah!

They laid the Kentucky gentleman on the operating table. His revolver was in his strong right hand.

"Boys," he said to the assembled surgeons, "I know this is goin' to be a serious affair, but let me tell you somethin'." And he tapped on his revolver. "If I have to go, I'll certainly want company. An' if you make way with me while I'm under the influoence of your derned opiates I've got six sons at home who would be only too delighted to show you what they think of your lack of skill in case it does lack. An' they'd be prepared to follow you around from King's bridge to Kingdom Come until they even up things for the loss of their old dad. That's all. Cut away."

Perhaps it is unnecessary to add that the operation was completely successful.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Grant's First Dollar.

General Wilson told the story of how General Grant earned his first dollar. He was a little chap living in Mount Pleasant, O., when the circus came to town. Like every other boy that could raise a quarter, he went to the show. One of the attractions was a trick mule, and $1 was offered to any one who could ride the mule around the ring without being thrown. After all the other volunteers had failed Grant tried, with the same result. "I want to try again," he insisted. "All right, sonny," said the circus man, and this time the boy reversed his position and held on by the mule's tail, which so astonished the animal that it failed to rid itself of its burden, and young Grant won the dollar.

A Curious Irish Tradition.

Ireland is a country rich in traditions, and in places every inch of the ground has its queer history and some quaint story attached to it. For instance, not far from Belfast there is a romantic old well in a curious hollow of the hills called Barnas gap. The well is known as Barnas well and is filled at the bottom with white stones, the heather around being covered with pieces of rags. Close, too, is a large mound composed of stones, which is said to cover the bones of a holy friar long since dead. Every visitor to the well appears to make it a practice of adding a stone to the heap already there, but for what reason it is impossible to say.

Remarkable Unanimity.

The remarkable unanimity that is so pleasant to observe between man and wife is nicely illustrated by the following two letters of the same date:

Country, Aug. 20.

Dear John—I am going to stay another week. Am having a splendid time. Affectionately, JULIA.

City, Aug. 20.

Dear Julia—You can stay another week. Am having a splendid time. Affectionately, JOHN.

For some reason or other she concludes to pack up and start for home immediately to see about his "splendid time."

A Kentucky Word.

In the mountains of eastern Kentucky when a man speaks of his wife to a third person he calls her "um," or when a wife speaks of her husband she calls him "um." For instance, "'um' is going to Saylersville tomorrow," or "'um' shot a bear yesterday." The word is said to have originated with young married folks over 100 years ago, who were too diffident to use the phrase "my wife" or "my husband."

While at the table before strangers the husband who desired his wife to pass the bread or sorghum would attract the attention of his wife by clearing his throat, "ahem," "oohum," and finally degenerating the phrase to "um," which was the final understanding when each was addressed.—Exchange.

Betting.

If betting could be stopped, an enormous bulk of those who engage in it—apart, of course, from professional bookmakers—would save a great deal of money, but there is no more chance of abolishing betting than of abolishing champagne, cigars and mutton chops. It would not be a bad thing if bookmakers were licensed, but they never will be, partly because of the difficulties of finding a satisfactory licensing tribunal and chiefly because of the outcry that would be raised about the "legalization of gambling."—Badminton Magazine.

Summer complaint is unusually prevalent among children this season. A well developed case in the writer's family was cured last week by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—one of the best patent medicines manufactured and which is always kept on hand at the home of ye scribe. This is not intended as a free puff for the company, who do not advertise with us, but to benefit little sufferers who may not be within easy access of a physician. No family should be without a bottle of this medicine in the house, especially in summer time. —Lansing, Iowa, Journal. For sale by F. Duhring.

It is courting danger to stand under icy eaves. Not a few have learned this to their cost. Every winter injury and even death are reported as the result of this carelessness. But there is a far more popular way of courting danger. Every man or woman who neglects a cough is inviting sickness, and many a fatal sickness has its beginning in a slight cough.

The timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure the cough. Even when the cough is obstinate and there is hemorrhage with emaciation and weakness, "Golden Medical Discovery" always helps and almost always cures.

"I was troubled with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs and left me with a miserable cough," writes Mr. Joseph D Burns, of 318 Huestis Street, Ithaca, New York. "I used two bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' after which my cough disappeared entirely. I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs. Substitution means a little more profit to the dealer but a loss to you.

CONDITION OF CROPS

The Weather Bureau crop reports for last week show that generally clear, warm weather prevailed in the State during the week, with fogs and a few light showers along the coast. Harvesting and thrashing are progressing rapidly. Wheat and barley are excellent in quality in all sections, and in parts of the San Joaquin valley are reported to be considerably better than had been expected. There is a report that the grain yield in some parts of the Sacramento valley was much less than anticipated, but other sections of the valley report a heavy yield. There is also a good crop in the central and northern portions of the coast and bay counties.

The hay crop is good in nearly all sections and being rapidly baled and stored.

Prospects are good for a large crop of beans and corn, but sugar beets are not doing as well as was expected in some sections.

Grapes are in excellent condition in all sections and prospects are good for an unusually heavy crop.

Deciduous fruits are turning out better than expected, the yield in many sections being above average. Drying and canning are in progress.

Heavy shipments of lemons are being made from the south.

Oranges and olives are in good condition.

It is reported that wheat has rusted in some parts of Lake county and that the hay crop there is light.

JOHN W. MACKAY, the last of the big four bonanza kings, and in some respects the greatest of them all, and whose immense wealth came from the rich Comstock lode, died in London last Sunday evening. The immediate cause of death is stated to have been heart failure, attendant on symptoms of pneumonia, the left lung being badly congested. Mr. Mackay's remains will be interred in Greenwood Cemetery, New York, where a magnificent mausoleum was built upon the accidental death of a son several years ago. The wealth of Mr. Mackay is not yet publicly known, but $25,000,000 would be a conservative estimate. His San Francisco holdings include a half interest in the Grand Opera House, one-half interest in the Nevada block and the entire property at the southwest corner of Market and Fourth streets. It is stated that the business affairs of the dead millionaire are in such shape that no delay will occur in the laying of the Manila cable, for which the contracts are already let.

THE papers of the State still have their eye on Dr. Lawlor. They are by no means blind to the fact that he is still hanging on at the Home and drawing his fat salary. Governor Gage shifts the responsibility on the Board of Directors and insists that his grand-stand play in recommending Lawlor's dismissal was all that it was possible for him to do. The Directors claim that they cannot find any available man to take Lawlor's place. No matter who is to blame, the wrong doing at the Home is not yet vindicated. Lawlor's "error of judgment" is even being rewarded by obsequious attendants, who this week presented a loving cup to their superintendent in acknowledgment of their appreciation.

GENERAL W. H. L. BARNES, the distinguished attorney and one of the noted orators of the State, died at his home in San Francisco Monday night. Death was the result of homorrhages produced by a cancerous growth in the throat of many years' standing. General Barnes was a conspicuous figure in the politics of his party and it is one of the anomalies of California politics that he was not chosen to represent the State in the United States Senate, where his scholarly attainments and brilliant oratory would have given him high rank.

MET A VIOLENT DEATH

Son of ex-Senator Ragsdale Killed In Mexico

A telegram from Sonora, Mexico, received last Monday conveys the news of the violent death of Charley Ragsdale, son of ex Senator Ragsdale of this county, who is now the American Consul in Tientsin, China.

Young Ragsdale, the dispatch says, was instantly killed by an explosion in the Mexican Anthracite coal mine, near Sonora, Mexico, on July 18th.

The deceased was 29 years of age.

The Same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience similar to that which has happened in almost every neighborhood in the United States and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by F. Dahring.

Uses to Which Lemons May Be Put.

A firm of lemon packers in Italy gives the following as among the uses to which lemons may be put:

During the last influenza epidemic in London, the Board of Health of that city advised the public to make free use of lemons to combat the epidemic.

A warm lemonade, taken in bed, will immediately produce an abundant perspiration, and a positive relief from a cold.

A few drops of fresh lemon juice added to drinking water will kill any microbes and greatly help digestion.

Lemons used in a bath will act as a disinfectant, clean the pores of the skin, hence revive their action.

Lemon juice is also universally known as one of the best remedies for rheumatism; and when diluted with warm water and salt and sniffed up the nostrils and used as a gargle is an excellent cure for catarrhal affections.

No cuisine is perfect without lemons, and this fruit is a necessary condiment to nearly all viands.

Summer Stories.

This is the season of the year when the festive summer girl and gallant shirt-waist man are with us in all their glory. Many stories are told of the ignorance and mishaps of the unsophisticated country boy who visits the large city for a first time, but he now has an opportunity to retaliate. It is related that one young city chap was detected busily chewing away on some almond hulls which he picked out of a box where they had been placed to be used for fuel. "Mighty poor lot of dried peaches these," said he; "poorest I've ever tasted."

Some of the cities have a fresh air fund to send the children of the slums into the country. A little boy who had been fortunate enough to reach a ranch where five or six cows were milked, was deeply interested in the preparations for milking. The cows were all quietly "chewing their cuds" and the boy at length gravely put the question, "Say, mister, do you have to buy the gum for all these cows?"

How Does It Seem to You?

It seems to me I'd like to go
Where bells don't ring nor whistles blow,
And clocks don't strike and gongs don't sound,
And I'd have stillness all around—

Not real stillness, but just the trees'
Low whisperings, or the hum of bees,
Or brooks faint babbling over stones,
In strangely, softly tangled tones.

Or maybe a cricket or katydid,
Or the songs of birds in the hedges hid,
Or just some such sweet sound as these
To fill a tired heart with ease.

If 'tweren't for sight and sound and smell,
I'd like the city pretty well;
But when it comes to getting rest,
I like the country much the best.

Sometimes it seems to me I must
Just quit the city's din and dust,
And get out where the sky is blue,
And, say, how does it seem to you?

AN EARLY CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATS WILL HOLD THEIR PRIMARIES AUGUST 8.

County Convention to Convene Four Days Later

W. F. Wines, Chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, has issued the call for the Democratic primaries and convention.

The convention is called to meet in Santa Rosa on Tuesday, August 12th, and primaries will be held throughout the county Friday, August 8th.

The convention is called for the purpose of nominating a full legislative and county ticket, as well as two Supervisors and township officers. Also to name nineteen delegates to the State congressional district conventions.

The call provides that in the cities of Santa Rosa, Petaluma, Healdsburg and Cloverdale the polls shall be open from 1 o'clock p. m. until sundown and in all other precincts of the county from 1 o'clock p. m. to 5 o'clock p. m. on said day.

The apportionment of delegates to the county convention will be one from each precinct for each twenty-five votes cast for the highest presidential elector for William Jennings Bryan at the last presidential election, and an additional delegate for each fraction thereof exceeding twelve.

No delegate will be entitled to more than one proxy in addition to his own vote, and no regularly elected delegate will be allowed to give his proxy to a delegate not a resident of the same precinct from which said delegate is elected. In case a delegate should not be present at the convention in person or by proxy, then the members of the delegation present from his precinct will cast his vote. Provided, always, that said proxy shall be a Democrat.

The total number of delegates in the convention will be 145.

FOXTAIL IN HIS EAR

M. Dolcini, the Well-Known Dairyman, Seriously Ill

M. Dolcini, the well-known dairyman, is now lying dangerously ill in San Francisco and it is feared that he will either die or lose his reason.

Recently while working in a harvest field near Petaluma a foxtail worked itself into one of Mr. Dolcini's ears. Its presence was not felt until some time after. It was then removed. Inflammation set in, however, and a physician was called to examine the ear, when it was discovered that in removing the foxtail a portion of it had been left in the ear. The pain became so agonizing that Mr. Dolcini was taken to San Francisco one day this week to be treated by an ear specialist. It is feared that it is now too late to remove the small piece of foxtail remaining in the ear and that its presence in the ear will cause death or loss of reason.

SUMMER VISITORS

They Are Very Much in Evidence This Year

At last the summer man and woman are very much in evidence in this valley. Every hotel, resort and private boarding house in the Sonoma valley is turning visitors away daily, although the accommodations over last year have been almost doubled, thanks to the efforts of the California Northwestern Railway Company and the Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE, which have labored unceasingly for eighteen years to attract the summer visitor to this most favored section of California.

At the present time there are several thousand people from San Francisco summering in this vicinity, and all express themselves as being delighted with the scenery and climate of the Sonoma valley.

On Sunday last one of the largest passenger trains ever hauled over the Sonoma valley branch of the California Northwestern pulled up in this place. The train was in charge of Conductor Crane. It numbered ten coaches and there were 540 passengers aboard. When it left Ignacio many of those on board of the train came here expecting to remain for several weeks, but found all the resorts filled to overflowing and were compelled to return to the city to spend their vacation here later on.

DEATH OF A PIONEER

W. L. Copeland Passes Away at a Ripe Old Age

William L. Copeland, a native of Tennessee and one of the oldest pioneers of the valley, died at his home on Broadway Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Copeland came here in 1846, and was 86 years old at the time of his death. He was a war veteran and drew a pension from the Government.

The funeral took place from his late residence yesterday afternoon and was largely attended.

Mr. Copeland leaves a daughter, Miss Octavia Copeland, to mourn his passing.

Gus Cornelius Returns From Dawson

Gus Cornelius, son of ex City Treasurer Cornelius, who left for Dawson last May, returned Tuesday evening from that great mining region. Gus, immediately upon his arrival in the metropolis of the Klondike, secured a prospecting outfit and, with two fellow travelers, left for a point seventy miles south of Dawson, where they arrived several days later. Here they pitched their tents and in a two days' prospect secured over $100 in placer gold. They then staked out their claims, which are exceedingly rich, and will returns later on to work them.

Another County Office.

The Board of Supervisors on last Saturday afternoon segregated the office of County Auditor and Recorder, making a separate office of each. Heretofore the Auditor has kept check on himself as Recorder, and the change was made on the recommendation of numerous grand juries, which have frequently called attention to evils existing in having the offices combined. The Board also voted down the proposition to levy a tax of one cent on each one hundred dollars of assessed property valuation in the county for advertising the county. The amount was asked for by the Board of Trade.

A BIG AFFAIR

Minstrels and Garden Party Given by the Woman's Club

The Woman's Club gave a highly successful affair last Saturday evening and a large crowd and big receipts was the result of the occasion.

A minstrel show in Union Hall, followed by dancing, and a garden party, made up a novel and delightful evening's entertainment.

The minstrels was participated in by some of our most prominent young ladies and gentlemen, and the solos, choruses and jokes were the best heard here for many years. Ranald McDonell made a capital interlocutor and James Small and Fred Goess manipulated the bones and tamborine. There were twelve in the ring and every one contributed his or her share to the fun. The costumes were red and white and with black face most of our local talent was almost unrecognizable.

After a witty and fluent oration eulogizing the members of the troupe, Interlocutor McDonell introduced James Small, who sang "Alabama Coon," and was warmly applauded.

The next soloists were Mrs. Burlingame and Mrs. McMullen, who gave a very clever rendition of "Run Along Mr. Johnson." Jokes and choruses were effectively interspersed.

Miss Ruth Poppe sang the latest hit, "My Lady Hottentot."

Then came Miss Nat Haraszthy, who sang "The Girl With the Dreamy Eyes," and introduced some clever acting into her part.

"Give Me Back Those Clothes" was the name of the rag-time piece sang and acted by little Ramona Granice.

Fred Goess surprised the audience by giving a pretty little love song in a splendid falsetto.

A rousing chorus closed the colored comedy.

After the performance the large crowd repaired to the plaza, which was brilliantly illuminated with electric lights and Japanese lanterns. Here dainty refreshments were for sale in artistic booths under the trees and the crowd patronized them liberally.

Dancing was inaugurated shortly afterward in the hall and a delightful time had by all who participated.

The ladies took in about $115.

Another change is expected here on the change of the moon. Sonoma creek will run toward Glen Ellen, as this is getting to be the big end of the valley.

Skelton Glaister, the accommodating salesman of Sonoma, spent a day fishing in this neighborhood this week. He reports bites plentiful, mostly mosquitoes. His summer bonnet also blew overboard.

Walter H. Lord had a force of men and teams hauling hay to the Southern Pacific depot this week. He sold ten carloads to San Francisco dealers. Charles Nelson, the good-looking mixologist, dealt out the red lemonade.

Mr. W. H. Lord and his friend, Mr. A. Hoffman of San Francisco, while out driving last Friday evening, were thrown out of their cart, but the "Off again, on again, gone again" manner in which the two gentlemen came out of the mix-up showed their athletic training as much as their horsemanship. Neither gentleman was injured.

Quite a number of our people attended the Methodist social given at Maxwell's Grove Friday evening. Among those who went were Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Burkett, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lord, Mrs. S. E. Latta, Mr. Raaf, Miss Latta, Miss Florence Burkett, Miss Cassie Burkett, Will Latta, C. O. Nelson, Otto Brandt, Chauncey Krauss, Sam and Olive Latta.

On last Friday the steamer Fort Bragg came up Sonoma creek as far as the Aselga ranch to take on a load of hay. The Fort Bragg is 195 feet in length and 35 feet wide. She is the largest craft that has came up Sonoma creek in years and made a fine appearance as she went through the drawbridge with 1790 bales of hay on board, which was all that Captain Keta would take. Mr. Burkett wanted him to take on ten bales more and make even hundreds, but the captain said "No, it's enough." They did some lively work. She arrived at the beet ranch at 6 p. m., took on board over 200 tons of hay and left at 3 p. m. Saturday. This is the largest shipment of hay reported from the valley this season. Another load from the same place awaits her return.

G. Somps, proprietor of the Oakland steam soda works, was in town Wednesday and Thursday.

Jack Martin, owner of the "Only U. S. Canteen," San Francisco, is registered at the French Cottage.

There is still a rush of summer visitors to this place and every resort in the town is crowded with guests.

Wm. Chance and Harry Baines will represent El Verano at the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons prize fight in San Francisco Friday night.

Two heavy wagers were made in this burg last Wednesday on the big championship battle between Jeff and Fitz. The bets were made at odds of two to one.

The grand ball which is to be given at the Bellevue Hotel Saturday night under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Booth of the coming Catholic Fair, promises to be well attended.

Andrew Dreffenbach, the young and popular station agent of the Southern Pacific, who is relieving M. F. Mullen at this place, is making quite a hit among the summer girls. They say he is the "darlingest little fellow that ever happened," and hope that he will remain at his his post here all through the summer.

The people of this burg were greatly amused Wednesday evening by seeing a cow hitched up to a light wagon. The driver and owner of the animal was Adam Yenni. He says that the cow was easily broken to harness and that she is the best animal to drive he has held the ribbons over for a long time. Mr. Yenni will drive his horned steed into Sonoma to-day and will no doubt create quite a furore in that town.

THE BERMUDA ISLANDS.

They Occupy For England a Singularly Commanding Position.

Imperial England knows what she is about. Those islands (the Bermudas), besides being used as a garrison for her troops and a safe, landlocked harbor for her warships, are a link in the chain that connects her American provinces in Canada and Nova Scotia with her possessions in the West Indies. The Bermudas occupy for her politically and commercially a singularly commanding and an unrivaled position, says a correspondent of the New York Mail and Express.

Spain parted with Cuba because she was forced to, and she sold to the American nation the Philippine Islands for a mess of pottage. Denmark, following suit, for a few million kroner made over to us her West India possessions. Catch England parting with the Bermudas! She would no more let them go than she would give up her great strongholds in the Mediterranean sea, Malta and the invincible, unyielding rock of Gibraltar. No power will ever wrest them from her—not one foot of ground—until she has lost every ship and her last drop of blood. No; instead of parting with any of her colonies her policy is to increase them.

Nor will England permit emigration to or an increase in the population of her garrison towns at Bermuda, Gibraltar and Malta. With some precautionary measures she will allow sightseers and tourists to enter Gibraltar, but strangers may not settle there permanently, nor may an alien own a foot of ground in the Bermudas. She wants only British subjects in these places, and even British subjects are not allowed to vote in Bermuda unless they own real estate there.

Royal Simplicity.

Household fetiches among the Bonapartes are the book and the little hat of Napoleon, that monarch who worked harder than any dozen men in his empire.

In Prussia they preserve piously the breeches of gray leather which were worn by the Margrave Frederick, the founder of the Hohenzollern dynasty. They preserve with equal reverence the cane which Frederick the Great carried in his battles, that same cane he had in his hand when he died in his armchair, refusing with characteristic force and obstinacy to die in his bed.

The Russian court still guards as if they were saintly relics the carpenter's tools which were once used by Peter the Great.

And finally the court of Vienna keeps in its most sacred treasure house the horseshoe which was cast by the steed of Count Rudolph, the founder of the Hapsburg dynasty, at that epoch making moment when he met the envoys who had come to announce to him his elevation to the throne of the holy Roman empire.

The Last Resort.

He visited a noted specialist and after waiting an hour had an opportunity to pay a fee and narrate his personal misery of insomnia. The medical man listened and suggested one remedy after another, with each and every one of which the visitor said he had unsuccessfully experimented. Finally the specialist wrote a prescription and handed it to his patient.

"What is it?" inquired the latter.

"Oh, a bromide," said the doctor. "It will benefit you."

"Rats!" said the other, degenerating into slang. "Tried 'em all. They ain't no good," further receding into bad grammar.

The doctor, evidently annoyed, bowed and, handing the man back his fee, destroyed the prescription and said, "There's only one thing left—you had better try sleeping cars."—New York Times.

Couldn't Hide His Joy.

It was a holiday. A man walked into the business office of a well known New York newspaper and handed the clerk at the counter a death notice. Of course that in itself was nothing strange, but his manner was merry and inconsistently so. The clerk looking at him rather strangely, he vouchsafed this remark, accompanied with a resounding slap on the shoulder: "Why, my boy, that was my mother-in-law."

When the joyous one left the office, he left the clerk in deep thought, wondering if that was the way mothers-in-law affected all men. —New York Tribune.

Wishing and Doing.

There is a tale of a man who spent his life in wishing he had lived differently, and when he died he was surrounded by a throng of spectral shapes, each one exactly like the other, who, on his asking what they were replied, "We are all the different lives you might have led."—Edith Wharton, "The Valley of Decision."

CATERPILLARS.

Expert Evidence as to the Tastes of These Insects.

In some cases an insect—as the caterpillar of the magpie moth—is conspicuously colored because, as it is harmful food for birds, frogs or lizards, they must be warned to avoid it. This has been long asserted, but some naturalists have hesitated to accept the theory.

Professor Plateau went out one day and ate part of one of these so called "distasteful" insects. He reported that the flavor, if somewhat insipid, was sweetish, containing a suggestion of almond, and was on the whole not unpleasant. Afterward Professor Wheeler of Texas was induced to repeat this gastronomic adventure. His report concerning the insects he devoured was that the flavor was slightly sweet and distinctly "nutty," and he earnestly invited naturalists to eat insects indiscriminately on all their expeditions. That, Professor Wheeler declared, would be the best way to dispose of the theory that some insects were harmful to birds, lizards and frogs and that their colors were self protective in warning those creatures to abstain from gobbling them up.

But Mr. Guy Marshall, the distinguished naturalist of Mashonaland, after proving that, as a matter of fact, frogs, birds and lizards do abstain from eating the highly colored caterpillars, pointed out that the personal tests made by his brother entomologists were of no worth, inasmuch as man was not naturally an insect eating animal, and what was food to him might be poison or at any rate highly unpalatable to a frog.—London News.

An Urgent Call.

After dinner one very disagreeable night last week a certain Madison avenue physician, looking from his office window and seeing the rain beat against the glass, decided that he would have a quiet, uninterrupted evening at home. He was soon in his house coat, a novel in his hand, and tobacco smoke was curling around him. About 10 o'clock some one rang the doorbell.

"The doctor is wanted right away at ——," began the caller.

"He can't go, sir," answered the servant quickly. "He left word that he was not well and that unless it was a case of life or death he would not venture out."

"Well, you tell him he must come over. We need him to sit in a poker game."

"Oh, you're Mr. B., are you? Step in, please, and I'll see."

A minute later the servant reappeared with, "The doctor says he'll be right over."—New York Post.

Won't Follow Advice After Paying For It.

In a recent article a prominent physician says, "It is next to impossible for the physician to get his patient carry out any prescribed course of hygiene or diet to the smallest extent; he has but one resort left, namely, the drug treatment." When medicines are used for chronic constipation, the most mild and gentle obtainable, such as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, should be employed. Their use is not followed by constipation, as they leave the bowels in a natural and healthy condition. For sale by F. Duhring.

THE ENGLISH CLIMATE.

It Is at Once the Worst and the Best in the World.

Of all known climates the English is, says John Corbin in The Atlantic, at once the worst and the best. From year's end to year's end the whole island and the heavens above are steeped in the soft damp of the four surrounding seas. A long and drenching rain is almost unknown; if a man can forego the vanity of being quite dry, and is not above an occasional retreat into a cab, an umbrella or a raincoat is scarcely necessary. Yet the sky is never crystal clear, as it so often is with us; the sun seldom dazzles, the stars never flicker and blaze. Month in and month out the landscape is blurred in all pervading damp—thin, almost imperceptible in summer, yet changing the verdure to an olive green; azure and opalescent in spring, purple in autumn, golden gray or lurid dun color in winter. And frost and snow are as rare as the heat of pure sunlight.

The defects of this climate are at one with the virtues in that they drive men into the open; indeed, it would not be easy to say what are defects and what are virtues. The temperance of the summer heat makes out of doors a paradise. In the winter one is chilled to the bone in English houses—not only American residents, but the natives themselves, if they stay long indoors. The coal consumed seems enough to heat the entire island to incandescence, yet such is the efficiency of the open fireplace of the country that the man who crouches before it goes blue in the lips and white to the roots of his nose, while the particles of half consumed carbon gather minute globules of mist above the chimneys, shroud the city in a black natural fog, and the citizens in a fog of the spirit.

The Origin of Speech.

The dog can emit four or five different tones, each indicative of a special mental condition and each fully understood by its companions. The barndoor fowl is credited with from nine to twelve distinct vocal sounds, each capable of a special interpretation by its fellows. The gestures of the lower animals are either facial, like the grimaces of a monkey, or changes of bodily attitude, like those of a dog. After citing the above mentioned facts the president of the anthropological section of the British association in a recent address went on to say that he thought it might not unreasonably be inferred that the remote progenitors of man relied upon equally lowly means of communication and that from such humble beginnings speech has been slowly evolved. Even yet we find gestures, facial expressions and certain vocal sounds often more eloquent than words.

Light Discolors Gems.

The discoloration of precious stones when they have been exposed to the air for a long time is well known. Emeralds, rubies and sapphires are less susceptible to atmospheric influence, but even they, says The Tatler, are not exempt from change. If two rubies of the same size and shade are kept for, say, two years, one in a showcase and the other in absolute darkness, an examination of the stones at the end of that time will invariably show that the showcase ruby has become distinctly lighter in color. The most sensitive of all stones to variations in light is the opal. This stone draws its marvelous rainbow reflections from numerous little clefts, which allow the light to pass and reflect it in different directions. Often the opal stands the manipulations of cutting and polishing well, and all of a sudden it splits.

The Trying Man.

The man who prides himself on never complaining is very trying. When things go wrong, in his opinion, when, for instance, his egg at breakfast is too soft, is too hard, when the soup at dinner has too much salt in it or the curry too little pepper, he does not say anything, but he looks as if he were on the point of bursting into tears and only controls himself because he is more manly than other men. In vain to ask him what is the matter. "Nothing," he replies, apparently choking down the rising sobs. The wife has to divine the trouble. Such a man has planted the wrinkles in many a woman's face.

The Way to Move Them.

A street preacher in a city in Scotland called a policeman who was passing and complained about being annoyed by a certain section of his audience and asked him to remove the objectionable persons.

"Weel, ye see," replied the cautious officer, "it would be a hard job for me to spot them, but I'll tell ye what I'd dae if I were ye."

"What would you do?" eagerly inquired the preacher.

"Just gang roon wi' the hat."

ARE YOU DEAF?

ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF

DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours, F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation.
